

To whom it may concern:

The MPCA wants to assure certified individuals that certifications scheduled to expire between March 13 and December 31, 2020, will not lapse as a result of course cancellations or COVID-19 related restrictions. This date may be reassessed in the future. Individuals with certifications that expire during this timeframe will not be required to retest.

Please submit your renewal form, renewal fee and documentation of any training you do have to the MPCA at the time of your expiration. If you have not completed all your continuing education hours as a result of the cancelled workshops you will be given one year from when training becomes available to make up the continuing education you missed. This time frame may be reassessed in the future.

If you have not fulfilled your continuing education requirement due to closure of workshops you will be issued a provisional certification, which is no different than your full certification but helps us keep track of this training debt. You will have up to one year from when training becomes available to complete the continuing education requirements owed from your previous certification cycle. Once you have completed your continuing education requirements from the previous cycle, please provide documentation of proof of attendance to Tracy Finch at the MPCA. This information can be sent via email, fax or mail to:

When you have completed your continuing education requirements from the previous certification cycle you will then be issued your full wastewater certification without any additional fee. Your wastewater certification will be dated with the same start and expiration date as your provisional certification. You will have the remainder of your 3 year certification cycle to obtain your continuing education hours for that certification cycle.
